Nevada News in Briefest Shape

The miners of the Quo Vadis district met at Quo Vadis townsite on January 20 and took the first steps to organize a mining district in legal form. There were 13 property owners represented in the proceedings. Still Van Dell was elected secretary and Mr. Locke recorder. The district is organized to cover a territory 15 miles square, being 7 1/2 miles each way from Quo Vadis townsite. The official name is "Quo Vadis mining district."

Carlin is again in the public eye, this time with a real bad man who not only holds up the town but breaks all the plate glass windows in the principal hotel and store building in the town. Jim Clark, a miner, is the man and he was finally landed in the can.

A franchise, extending for fifty years, to construct a pipe line to Reno for the purpose of conducting hot springs from Steamboat Springs for heating purposes has been granted by the city council. Work must be started within a year. The project is being handled by the Fallon Standard.

motors assert the proposition has been financed.

Attendance at the University of Nevada has shown a big increase at the present semester, there now being 102 more students at this institution than there were a year ago. The present registration is 394.

Argument in the Hartung estate suit in which the State of Nevada and the University of Nevada are plaintiffs, was concluded in the district court before Judge Stoddard at Reno, and the case submitted.

Jack Gallagher, who on Tuesday caused considerable commotion at the Perkins-Gulling undertaking parlors at Reno, in an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide in the "morgue," was turned loose, glad that he failed to make good his attempt.

The Fallon Standard says that the scarlet fever epidemic has apparently subsided, there being no new cases for more than a week. It is certain that the disease is fully under control by the authorities and physicians, and with continued care there should be no additional cases.

PETITION ASK FOR THE ACQUITTAL OF BARTMESS

A petition, expressing the good faith of the citizens of Duckwater in Jack Bartmess, charged with the illegal killing of cattle, and requesting leniency in his case or acquittal, is a rather unusual procedure in a pending case, but such a petition has been sent to Tonopah from Duckwater, where the offense is alleged to have been committed. It is signed by 33 representative citizens there.
